DECLARATION OF MICHAEL B. HUDANICK

1. My name is Michael Brian Hudanick. I am over the age of 21 years and am fully competent to make this declaration. I have personal knowledge of the facts contained in this declaration, and those facts are true and correct.
2. I am employed by Dell as a compensation strategist. I started at Dell in December of 2003 and began working in the compensation and benefits group in March of 2006. I am responsible for sales compensation plan design, evaluation, and sales compensation policy development and interpretations for several business units within Dell.
3. There are four global business units of Dell in which sales representatives may work: Large Enterprise, Small and Medium Business (SMB), Public, and Consumer. Consumer sales representatives make sales to individuals, not businesses. Public sales representatives make sales to governmental, educational, non-profit and related customers. Large Enterprise sales representatives make sales to large businesses. SMB sales representatives make sales to small and medium businesses. The jobs of sales representatives are widely varied depending on which business unit they are employed by, the particular job assignment, supervisors, full or part time status, and what was being sold. Each of the business units has different compensation plans. All of the plaintiffs in this case were employed within the SMB unit.
4. Even within the SMB unit, there are many different subunits. Within each of these subunits, there are multiple sales jobs. The employees in the different jobs have different compensation plans. The jobs have significant differences in how the sales representatives are scheduled to work, how sales representatives take lunch breaks, the kinds of accounts that are handled by the sales representatives, whether the sales representative is on a queue taking inbound calls or whether the sales maker is making calls to customers, and other differences.

Attachment A to this declaration is a chart that shows different attributes of various sales jobs within SMB.

5. In addition to differences between sales representatives performing different jobs, an individual sales representative may have differences in his or her own jobs. Entry-level sales employees were frequently employed as an Inside Sales Representative IB (ISR IB). Such employees would frequently be assigned to a sales queue taking inbound calls. Successful sales makers would be promoted to ISR I, ISR II, ISR III, and ISR IV. Several of the plaintiffs received promotions and changed jobs from inbound call queues to other subunits within SMB. Sales jobs involving a sales queue taking inbound calls on a schedule set by Call Center Operations are generally required to be clocked in and available for inbound calls when their schedule shift begins. Other sales jobs, including all jobs with assigned accounts, did not have a requirement to be available for inbound calls during a scheduled shift. Only sales jobs that predominantly handled inbound calls ever had to "accommodate heavy call volume." Most sales jobs were unaffected by inbound call volume.
6. In addition to Inside Sales Representative positions, some of the plaintiffs held the position of Technical Sales Representative (TSR). The job of a Technical Sales Representative is fundamentally different than the job of an ISR. Dell's personnel records reflect that Plaintiffs Christopher Snead, Nicholas Stewart, and Tracie Hurt Webb held TSR positions during their employment with Dell.
7. ISRs and TSRs received a fixed weekly salary each week and were paid overtime at a fluctuating rate for additional time worked beyond forty hours a week. If a sales representative worked any time in a given work week, he or she would receive his or her full, fixed weekly salary. Even if sales representatives did not have any paid time off available, their salaries were not deducted in weeks that they worked less than 40 hours. Attachment B to this declaration are records from Dell's timekeeping system, Kronos, and paycheck stubs that demonstrate that employees did not have salary deductions. Specifically, attached are records that show the following examples of workweeks in which a plaintiff did not work 40 hours, did not use paid time off benefits, yet still received the full salary.

Plaintiff Tommy Moore worked 37.5 hours in the workweek ending June 25, 2006. He used no paid time off hours, but received his entire salary. In the two workweeks ending August 6, 2006, he worked 34 hours and 37 hours respectively. He used no paid time off benefits in either week, but received his full salary.

Plaintiff Tracie Webb worked only 33.75 hours in the week ending September 30, 2007, used no paid time off hours, but received her full salary.

Plaintiff Joshua Clanton worked only 37 hours for the workweek ending December 16, 2007, used no paid time off hours, but received his full salary.

8. Sales representatives, including all of the plaintiffs, had wide fluctuation in the number of hours they worked each week. Attachment C to this declaration are Kronos records that show such wide fluctuation. For example, Plaintiff Michelle Ricketts' hours worked per week varied from a low of 17 hours to a high of 48.75 hours, and Plaintiff Russell Romriell's hours worked per week varied from a low of 23.5 hours to a high of 59.25 hours. Plaintiff David Haley worked as few hours as 34 in a workweek and as many as 58.5 in a workweek. All of the plaintiffs except Catherine Davis had hours worked that fluctuated below 40 hours in some workweeks.

9. Dell's policy is to compensate employees for all time worked, including pre-shift and post-shift time. Plaintiffs themselves reported and were paid for pre-shift and post-shift hours. Attachment D to this declaration are Kronos records that illustrate plaintiffs reporting pre-shift and post-shift hours.¹

For example, Plaintiff Romriell was scheduled to work from 8:00 am to 5:00pm in June, July and August of 2006. He routinely reported hours as early as 7:15 am. During those three months, there were only three days in which he clocked in at 8:00 am or later. Although his shift was scheduled to end at 5:00 pm, he routinely clocked out much later, sometimes as late as 9:00 pm. Mr. Romriell clocked out at exactly 5:00 pm only 12 times and clocked out later 33 times during those months. Mr. Romriell was paid for all hours he reported.

From May to July 2006, Plaintiff David Haley was scheduled to work starting at 8:00 am. He routinely clocked in at 7:00 am or 7:30 am. Mr. Haley was paid for all hours he reported.

Plaintiff Catherine Davis was employed by Dell from July 2005 until October of 2005. She clocked in at times ranging from as early as 7:00 am to as late as 10:45 am and clocked out as late as 10:50 pm. She clocked out at exactly 5:00 pm only on four occasions, three of which were in the first week of her employment. Ms. Davis was paid for all hours she reported.

10. Dell managers did not discourage the reporting of overtime. Both sales representatives and managers benefitted by sales employees working extra hours as both could receive accelerated commission payments by exceeding their quotas. Because of this, sales representatives often worked and reported large amounts of overtime. Attachment E are Kronos records that show large overtime hours reported and paid. For example, during her time at Dell, Plaintiff Catherine Davis reported 238.75 hours of overtime and 595 regular hours (28.5% of her hours worked at Dell were overtime). Plaintiff Daniel Wojciechowski reported 292.75 hours of overtime and 1017.75 regular hours (22% of his hours worked at Dell were overtime). Plaintiff David Haley reported 1016.25 hours of overtime and 3878.5 regular hours (21% of his hours worked at Dell were overtime).
11. Kronos would automatically deduct one hour for a lunch period unless the employee canceled the deduction by entering the cancel deduction code (represented as "CD" on Kronos records) or by simply reporting a different lunch period by clocking out and clocking in. Employees were instructed that sales representatives, including plaintiffs, routinely used these methods for reporting time that they worked through all or a portion of their meal break. Attachment F are Kronos records that show such practices were routinely employed by the plaintiffs. For example, during the three years prior to his joining the litigation, Plaintiff Myron Schrouf worked 242 days for Dell. Of those 242 days, he reported a lunch period and did not have a lunch hour deduction on 239 days. The only days he did not report a different lunch period were June 1, 2006 and November 16-17, 2006 (his last two days of work). Plaintiff Daniel Wojciechowski worked 41 days for Dell in the three years prior to joining this suit. Of those days, he did not have a single day on which the default one-hour deduction was applied. Instead, he clocked out and back in for his meal breaks. Of the approximately 435 work days at Dell in the three years before Plaintiff Nicholas Stewart joined the lawsuit, Mr. Stewart had the automatic one-hour deduction on only 23 days. He used the "CD" code to cancel the lunch deduction almost 400 times during that same period. Other plaintiffs also routinely used either the clock-out/clock-in or "CD" code method to cancel the default deduction when they worked during a lunch period, including Tracie Hurt Webb, Christopher Snead, Bradley Pate, Russell Romriell, Joshua Barker, David Haley, and Hitul Gandhi.

I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct.
